Noemi Cantele wins the Vuelta Ciclista a El Salvador. Double victory for BePink, the main protagonist until the very end.

“We did it. Now we can really say it. I’m very happy, this is a great result. This red jersey has a special meaning to me. It was very hard, but thanks to our hard work, the whole team earned this awesome success”, stated Noemi Cantele, the undisputed protagonist of this race since day one.

The general classification sees two BePink athletes at the very top. Noemi Cantele and Alena Amialiusik, ranked 2nd, were among the protagonists of the last stage as well. Today, the young Byelorussian got on the lowest step of the podium, followed by Noemi in 4th place.

BePink really stole the show. Walter Zini’s girls raced impeccably during the whole Vuelta. Strength, passion, determination and courage are just a few of the ingredients that made this success possible.

A prestigious result, highlighted by the earning of four jerseys, plus the red one: Noemi also won the mountains and points classifications jerseys, Alena won the intermediate sprint one and the whole team ranked first in the team classification.

Everyone was really satisfied. “I’m so happy for Noemi and satisfied with all the girls’ performances. They showed their preparation. This important jersey, so coveted and sought for, belongs to all six of the athletes because they all worked their hardest for it. It’s not easy to wear the red jersey on the first stage and to keep it on until the last, and neither is controlling the race as well as Noemi did. We proved time and time again our maturity and sportsmanship” said Walter Zini proudly.
